RUNNING MATES

The Mullises — seen here running through Coker Arboretum — live in Carboro and both enjoy time with their Red Feet and O2 Fitness families. "Fitness has never been a competition between us, but rather more like a gift to each other," Randy says. Adds Robin, "The fact that we enjoy exercising and can participate in it together makes it easy to be committed."

Trilogy

UNIVERSITY PLACE

TRILOGYRESTAURANT.COM

When you think movie theater concessions, you probably picture buttered popcorn, not a buttery, toasted roll stuffed with lobster meat. But then again, Silverspot Cinema in University Place is rethinking the entire experience, from their cushy leather seats you can reserve in advance to a changing cocktail menu that reflects the current showings. (Martinis shaken and stirred were offered for this fall's new James Bond flick.) Their restaurant Trilogy serves a full menu with a regional bent – buttermilk chicken biscuits, shrimp and grits – designed with speed in mind so you'll make your movie. But even if you've seen all the indie films or Hollywood blockbusters, stop by just to try offerings like the BLT Lobster Roll. Made with tarragon mayo and lobster from the Bay of Fundy, it comes topped with thick cut N.C. bacon. Pair it with a local beer, and you might find yourself making excuses to go to the movies even if you spend all your time at Trilogy. $16 – Jessica Stringer CHM
