Riders, not city, shun trolley

Lauderdale decides to keep publicly funded tram despite big deficit

By BRITTANY WALLMAN
Staff writer

Ridership is dropping, and the red-and-yellow Sun Trolley system faces a multimillion-dollar budget hole.

But it's not the end for the 25-year-old Sun Trolley community bus operation in Fort Lauderdale. City officials on Tuesday night endorsed the Sun Trolley's continued existence, despite its troubles.

"It's not a pretty picture," said Fort Lauderdale Commissioner Romney Rogers, who sits on the board of the nonprofit Transportation Management Association, operator of the trolley system.

By a 4-1 vote, Commissioner Dean Trantalis dissenting, city commissioners Tuesday embraced a Transit Master Plan that spells out potential improvements and changes to the Sun Trolley, including charging fares on some of the free routes, and replacing the current hail-a-ride system with fixed bus stops.

The plan forecasts a $46.4 million

3,336 Caribbean refugees (and 120 pets) get a fresh start in South Florida thanks to cruise line

By ARLENE SATCHEL

A mix of emotions filled the air at Port Everglades on Tuesday as hurricane refugees from the eastern Caribbean hugged loved ones, burst into tears of joy and flashed broad smiles after reaching a safe haven from the storm-devastated islands they once called home.

Arriving aboard the Royal Caribbean cruise ship that dropped anchor were 3,336 evacuees from Puerto Rico and the U.S. Virgin Islands — weary but relieved — many with pets in tow.

The Adventure of the Seas arrived at the Broward County seaport after concluding a humanitarian relief mission that delivered essential supplies to residents in U.S. territories ravaged by hurricanes Maria and Irma. The cruise ship then was used to transport many island residents with medical and special needs to the U.S. mainland for treatment and better living conditions.

Some evacuees traveled with their last worldly possessions stuffed into a single suitcase. Some were accompanied by four-legged companions: 120 cats and dogs, a hamster, and a guinea pig made

Officials still haven't offered a motive for why Stephen Paddock, 64, of Mesquite, Nev., opened fire at a concert across the street from the Mandalay Bay Resort and Casino on Sunday night, killing 59 and injuring

But additional information obtained by investigators revealed the extent to which Paddock, who owned dozens of guns, apparently "preplanned extensively" for the attack, said Clark County Sheriff Joe Lombardo.

Festival of the Arts Boca bringing winners to Mizner

BY BEN CRANDELL
Staff writer

Actor Bill Murray, influential musician and producer T Bone Burnett, opera great Kathleen Battle and violin legend Itzhak Perlman are among the highlights of Festival of the Arts Boca 2018, rolling out Feb. 23-March 4 at Mizner Park Amphitheater and the Mizner Park Cultural Arts Center.

WP PHOTOGRAPHY/COURTESY

Bill Murray and cellist Jan Vogler at an August performance of "New Worlds," which they will bring to Festival of the Arts Boca on March 2.

Tickets for the festival will cost $15 to $250 and will be available starting Oct. 15 at FestivalBoca.org and by calling 866-571-2787. Early-bird tickets will be available for select performances, and multievent packages and passes for the entire festival also will be available.

The 12th annual festival opens Feb. 23, with renowned American soprano Kathleen Battle making a rare concert appearance in a program of George Gershwin and spirituals with the Lynn Philharmonia, led by Constantine Kitsopoulos. The program also will include Brahms' Symphony No. 1.

Perlman returns to Mizner Park on Feb. 24 with his popular "In the Fiddler's House," pairing the violinist with a 10-piece klezmer ensemble for a whimsical musical journey from New York's Lower East Side to a Jewish festival in Krakow, Poland.

Burnett comes to Boca Raton on March 1 for a wide-ranging discussion titled "On the Road With T Bone Burnett: Stories, Music & Movies." The Academy Award winner and 13-time Grammy Award winner produced the soundtracks for such films as "O Brother, Where Art Thou?" "Cold Mountain," "Walk the Line" and "Crazy Heart." He also paired bluegrass star Alison Krauss with rock icon Robert Plant on the album "Raising Sand."

On March 2, Murray will take part in "New Worlds," a collaboration of music and literature with German cellist Jan Vogler, violinist Mira Wang and pianist Vanessa Perez, who all performed on an album of the same name released Sept. 29. The album sets Murray's readings of works from Walt Whitman, James Fenimore Cooper, Mark Twain and James Thurber to the music of Saint-Saëns, Gershwin, Bach, Leonard Bernstein and Van Morrison.

In a statement sent via the record label, Decca Gold, Murray said, "I am bathing in this experience, really. I can't get enough of it."

Also part of the festival will be Grammy-winning violinist Midori and young Russian pianist Nikolay Khozyainov (March 3); Grupo Compay Segundo from Cuba, making its first U.S. appearance in nearly 20 years (Feb. 25); Hannah Tinti, author of "The Twelve Lives of Samuel Hawley" and "The Good Thief" (Feb. 25); and technology entrepreneur and X Prize Foundation creator Peter Diamandis (Feb. 28).

The festival closes March 4 with an outdoor, big-screen showing of the family adventure "E.T. the Extra-Terrestrial," with John Williams' Academy Award-winning score performed live by the Symphonia, Boca Raton, led by Constantine Kitsopoulos.

Tyler disputes rumors: Aerosmith frontman Steven Tyler is disputing rumors about his health after an early end to the band's tour, saying he "certainly did not have a heart attack or seizure." Tyler, 69, says in a statement posted on the band's website that he's sorry for cutting the tour short, but he had to have a medical procedure that only his doctor in the United States could perform. Aerosmith announced last week that it was canceling the tour's shows in Brazil, Chile, Argentina and Mexico.

Austin fest offers refunds: The Austin City Limits music festival is offering refunds to anyone uncomfortable with attending following the mass shooting at a country music concert in Las Vegas. The festival opens Friday and packs downtown Austin, Texas, with about 75,000 people each day.

Pay up: British actors Steve Coogan and Sienna Miller have received financial damages and apologies from Mirror Group Newspapers in the settlement of long-running phone hacking cases. The damages were not made public, but Coogan said outside London's High Court on Tuesday that it was a "six-figure" sum, the bulk of which would be distributed to charity. He said the settlement meant "vindication" for him.

Country music star Jason Aldean issues rallying cry for unity

Country star Jason Aldean says he's praying for the victims of the Las Vegas shootings, saying his "heart aches" and issuing a rallying cry for Americans to come together.

The singer writes something has "changed" in the world, making it "the kind of place I am afraid to raise my children in."

"At the end of the day we aren't Democrats or Republicans, whites or blacks, men or women. We are all humans and we are all Americans, and it's time to start acting like it and stand together as one!"

Aldean was onstage Sunday when a gunman shot into a crowded music festival, killing 59.

"My heart aches for the victims and their families of this senseless act," Aldean wrote on Instagram, adding: "Time to come together and stop the hate!"
